They Peace Conference, and now we propose that the Conference—partly your own work—shall have power to coerce you into an Irish settlement." Have the petitioners given any thought to the probable result of their memorial? It is, we may suppose, very likely that at least 139 exofficers of the 36th Division will send a counter-memorial to the King, reminding him of the Government's solemn pledges to Unionist Ulster. The Southern memorial says: "We shall have been deceived if our solutions and the conference and now we propose that the great majority the their by their mistresses or by other servants in the same moment.

because it seems to permit the League to interfere in the domestic problems of the United States. The present memorial invites the King to make the Conference arbiter of the destinies of an integral part of the United Kingdom. We shall not discuss the very delicate question of His Majesty's constitutional authority to take this step. We shall merely point out that the analogy suggested by the memorial's reference to "other matters touching Your Majesty's sovereignty" is fallacious. Those other matters relate to ex-German Colonies and to certain spheres of influence." The request that for centuries; besides, its settlement the King shall submit Ireland's case to would deprive social life of many of its the Conference would be comparable with demand for the submission to the same oody of a dispute between the Federal Government of the United States and the State of Virginia. Parliament and the British people would no more accept the one suggestion than the American people ITS RETURN TO THE CHRISTIANS would accept the other. We may all agree with the memorial that the present condition of Ireland is unsatisfactory. If a just settlement could be contrived by agreement, we and every reader of this newspaper would rejoice. No such settlement is possible, however, for an un-

While we respect the sincerity and honour the loyal service of the authors of the memorial, we cannot believe that it will promote the cause which they have at heart. We and many other Irishmen, Unionist and Nationalist, had hoped that the fellowship of Unionist and Nationalist in the trenches might smooth the path to unity at home. We have not abandoned the hope, but this memorial does not strengthen it. Coming mainly from a group of Southern soldiers, it is not an eirenicon to the soldiers of the North. Now, as always, Ireland takes her stand upon the rights of her nationhood. In former times the separate nationhood of Ireland, distinct from Great Britain, was recognised, in form and in fact, by the official designation as the Kingdom of Ireland under the Crown of Your Majesty's predecessors. In 1782 the Irish Parliament declared its legislative independence of the British Parliament, and the British Parliament expressed its formal and official acquiescence. In the year 1800, however, by the enactment of the Act of Union the Irish Parliament was abolished, and the Kingdom of Ireland itself incorporated with the Kingdom of Great Britain under the new title of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

The circumstanes under which the Act of Great Britain and Ireland.

The circumstanes under which the Act of Union was enacted were such that Ireland has always challenged it as being devoid both of moral and legal sanction. The experience of '118 years shows it to have perpetuated in Ireland a condition of political insurgency; and an examination of the concrete results establishes the fact that Ireland, as compared with the other constituent units of the United Kingdom, then for the first time formed, has fallen far behind in population, wealth, and national power. The vital forces of the Irish nation have been spent in efforts at self-expression and self-realisation, and its material interests have been sometimes ignored, and cometimes overborne amidst the rivalries of British party

GERMANY. As the result of a regrettable collision between American soldiers and sailors and London police yesterday, there was a serious disturbance, which lasted for several bours, in the neighbourhood of the Strand. The trouble originated outside the Eagle Hut in Aldwych, which is a hostel for men of the American Forces. Shortly before noon a group of soldiers and sailors outside the hut were engaged in a game of shorting the dice, a form of gambling which has always been popular at the front. Such a group outside the hut is no unusual occurrence, but yesterday the gamesters were not allowed to proceed unchallenged. Apparently a civil policeman interfered, and from a wordy argument speedily came to blows. The policeman drew his truncheon and, a second constable arriving, felled one of his assailants. This led to a scrimmage, and soon half a dozen constables were on the scene. These men were arrested and taken to Bow street Police Station on a charge of gambling. The American military police corporal arrived, and disputed the action of the civil police, declaring it was a matter which the American military police should deal with.

It is not clear what provocation he gave, but it is alleged a constable hit the corporal on the head with his baton, and the American fell. He was put on his feet and removed to Bow street. BELGIUM'S CLAIMS ON

LORD LANSDOWNE AND THE WAR.

In to-day's issue of the Morning Post Lord Lansdowne takes to task the writer of a lead-ing article in that journal on the 8th inst. He says:—In commenting upon the speech which I made in the House of Lords on March 6th as made in the House of Lords on March 6th as to the economic situation in Central Europe, he says:—"Lord Lansdowne thought the war was lost, and that we had best agree with the adversary quickly. But he was mistaken then, and it is just possible he may be mistaken now." The writer of the article, like many other people, has in his mind not what I actually said or wrote, but what I was supposed to have said or written, in the winter of 1917-18. I never eaid or thought that the war was lost. On the contrary, I said that we were fighting "to inflict signal defeat upon the Central Powers." As to the feeding of Germany, Lord Lansdowne thinks that Mr. G. H. Roberts, the Food Controller, is a better exponent of the spirit of the nation than the writer in question. He (Lord Lansdowne) finds it difficult to resist the conclusion that a world-wide catastrophe been placed, and who was arrested at the time of Almereyda's death.

It will be remembered that at the inquest there were a number of discrepancies and contradictions in the evidence given by members of the prison staff. According to this evidence the condition of Almereyda became grave at 6 o'clock in the morning, and after great agony, interrupted by periods of calm, the death took place at 11 o'clock. The prison doctors affirmed that death was due entirely to natural causes, Almercyda having been in ill-health for some time. Doctors despatched the same evening to Fresnes Prison by the Public Prosecutor of the Department of the Seine gave a different verdict, They discovered a deep purple scar on the neck of the deceased, and stated that death was due to strangulation effected by means of prisoner's boot-laces, which were found in a corner of the cell. It was pointed out that boots were not allowed in the cell of a prisoner confined to his bed, and investigations showed that the boots had, in fact, been removed to the room occupied by Bernard, the attendant, who relieved the night intro on the morning of Almereyda's death.

In reply to a question, the Minister said that Mr. Lloyd George's proposal that the Allies should enforce the abolition of compulsory service in Germany, and the substitution of a volunteer long-service Army for the Army raised by conscription, had been accepted in its entirety by the Council of Ten.

With regard to the question of supplying food to Germany, M. Pichon said than no one was willing to let Germany starve. recently announced that the Belgian delegation to the Peace Conference had submitted a complete set of official German documents, showing the systematic manner in which the sack of industrial Belgiam and Northern France was organized by the enemy, and it is now possible to give the following interesting particulars regarding these documents, which the German either had no time, or neglected, to destroy before their retreat from Brussels, where the papers were subsequently discovered. Some of these documents relate to a "dismantling syndicate" (Abbau-Konzern), consisting of five firms—the Gute Hoffnungshuette, of Cherhausen; Heinrich Hehmann (? Lehmann), of Dusseldorf; Hifgers, of Pheinsehl (?); Juche, of Dortnund; and Greest, of Berlin—who formed the official body charged with the looting of the invaded provinces. This associatio carried on its work in connection with a department connected with the Ministry of Wain Berlin, known as the "Wumba" Arms an Munitions Supply Department, and it was frou it that the "Wumba" received the bulk of the machinery transferred from the occupied territory. A complete inventory of the economi resources of Belgium and Northern France habeen drawn up before the war by the Germa Secret Service, and, provided with this document, the "Wumba" was in a position to offethe machinery and equipment of the dismantle Belgian and French factories to Germai firms engaged in similar industries, to whom this loot was sold at cheap rates. Most of the profits thus made by the "Wumba" went to the German Ministry of War—a point to be noted in the drawing up of the bill of high ideals.

Lord Robert Cecil made a speech on the work of the League of Nations, in which he pointed out that one of the greatest consolations for the losses of war was the way in which it would bring peoples together. As the world grew older, the nations realised more and more that fraternity of arms was not enough to assure peace, without the union of all wealth to assure peace, without the union of all wealth and energy. Ancrica would recognise, and, indeed, had recognised, that even the Atlantic could not separate her from the rest of the world. Lord Robert Cecil also paid a warm tribute to France, who had taught Great Britain and America splendid principles through har literature, history, and art, and he said that it was only on the basis of all the Allies realising how much they owed each other that leading how much they owed each other that leading nations would stand firm. On the three great nations rested the responsibility of keeping alive the international spirit, and if we could do this we should accomplish a work invaluable for our nations and for humanity at large. The Allies could not hope now to lay more than the foundations of the League, but if these were well laid the generations that followed them would be able to build upon them.

MR. WILSON'S RETURN.

FRENCH NAVAL WRITERS' VIEWS.

A Paris telegram states that Engineer-Commander Laubeur, a former officer of the French Navy, writes in the Journal:—The proposal to destroy the German Fleet seems to be in defiance of common sense. The German Fleet was worth about two thousand million francs before the war, which would make its value now about four thousand million francs. The writer deprecates still more the proposal to break up the German warships. "Great Britain appears only to be considering her own point of view and overlooking ours. We have not built warships during the war, and losses have weakened the French the Germans signed in January, the Germans agreed to hand over their merchant fleet to the Allies, in order to assist in the general provisioning of Europe, especially of Germany. Suddenly, on the pretext that our requirements were excessive, the Germans refused to carry out their undertaking. This could not be accepted. The Allied Governments required a declaration from the German side that Germany woulf fulfil. They would then immediately proceed with the arrangements for the revictualling of the country. Already contracts had been concluded with firms, which would be asked to supply the necessary food-stuffs, and which were entirely satisfied with the financial terms offered by the Allied Governments. The question of the supply of food-stuffs to Austria and Hungary had also been under consideration during the last few days.

The Supreme War Council decided, at to-day's sitting, on plans which were interrupted at Spa. The Allied delegates will leave Paris next week for Brussels, where the sittings of the Armistics of the Allied delegates will leave Paris next week for Brussels, where the sittings of the Armistics of the Armis

SERIOUS SITUAITON IN THE UKRAINE.

The Ukrainian Press Bureau publishes the text of a message sent to Odessa by the French Government, stating that, in view of the in adequacy of the preliminary agreement reached at Birsular, the French Government had charged Generals Anselme and Berthelmot to arrange with the Ukrainian Government a conclusive treaty which would remove the difficulties still outstanding, and establish the basis for common action against the Bolshevists. According to the latest news from Stanislavoff, the military situation in the Ukraine is daily becoming more serious. Two Bolshevisk Armies abundantly supplied with munitions, guns, and armoured trains, are adapticing, one sganst Odessa, and the other in the direction of Vinnitza. The Ukrainian troops, who lack munitions, are withdrawing in face of numerically superior forces in the direction of East Galicia. The Ukrainian Government, which had to leave Fastoff for Vinnitza, has now been obliged to evacuate this town also.

A Press Association war telegram from Paris on Sunday says:—A great demonstration or Sunday says:—A great demon President of the Chamber of Deputies, was held yesterday at the Trocadero on behalf of the liberated regions of France. A petition signed by 3,744,327 inhabitants of these regions was handed to M. Deschanel, urging that the immense losses experienced by them should be made good in full. Among the principal losses specified are the following:—2,650,000 hectares of land capable of cultivation devastated—100,000 of these are irreparably destroyed and 80,000 damaged so badly that they can with difficulty be redeemed; 600,000 hectares of forest land destroyed; 145 sugar factories destroyed out of 213, which formed the entire sugar industry of France—a reduction of the whole industry by more than two-thirds. M. Ribot delivered an address, in which he depicted the terrible experiences of the invaded provinces, and several other speakers laid stress on the importance of securing full reparation for the havoc wrought, completely, and prevent one man from trading on others; and, second, the introduction of a form of socialism which will allow no classes or state power to exist. Lenin added that inor state power to exist. Lenin added that intervention by the Allies was becoming daily more difficult, on account of the movements in those Allied countries which were sympathetic with the Soviet Republic, and on account of Russia's Red Army, which daily was increasing in strength and union. The position of the Soviet Government's most dangerous adversary, General Krasnoff. had become hopeless. ### INDUSTRIAL UNREST.

FOOD MINISTER'S ADVICE. FOOD MINISTER'S ADVICE.

Mr. G. H. Roberts, Minister of Food, speaking at Norwich yesterday, urged the Churches to unite in promoting spirituality, to the lack of which he attributed much of the present unrest. The star of Great Britain was the common-sense of the common people, and that common-sense would prevail. He was not going to stand by and see his class misled into believing that upheaval would produce a perfect state. They must look to the co-operation of all classes for the emergence of wise, sound measures. Unemployment was attributable to unrestrained competition and lack of organisation. Regulate competition and lack of organisation. Regulate competition, organise industry, and promote co-operation and understanding, was his advice.

RAILWAY CLERKS AND RECOGNITION

THREATENED STRIKE SUSPENDED.

At a meeting of the Railway Clerks' Association in London on Saturday night a resolution was carried to stapend action pending the result of the adjourned deliberations of the Railway Executive Committee and the Railway Clerks' Association Sub-Committee and the completion of the final draft of the arrangements of the official recognition of the Union.

Mr. A. G. Walkden, General Secretary, explained that Sir Robert Horne strongly disapproved of the attitude of the railway managers towards the question of direct negotiations between the companies and the railway clerks' trade union. They could claim to have got everything they required so far as recognition was concerned. Mr. Wardle, M.P., had been appointed Chairman of the joint sub-committee of the managers' and clerks' representatives.

At a meeting of the Irish Divisional Council of the Railway Clerks' Association of Great Britain and Ireland held in Dublin on Saturday night, a resolution was passed condemning the action of the Railway Executive Committee in violating the contract entered into on their belief the Sim Albert stander, and appealing to TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I notice on all sides talk of appeals to President Wilson for "self-determination" for Ireland. It is within the memory of many of us that, when the Southern States of America sought to secede from the Union, President Lincoln and the Northern States would not consent to secession; and the result of the great Civil War was that the Southern States were compelled to stay in the Union, and are now in consequence, many years after, both prosperous and happy. We, as portion of the United Kingdom, appear to be in the same position. Seeing this, I would like to ask: What right or excuse, would President Wilson have to ask our Government to do what his Government refused to do ment to do what his Government refused to do action of the Railway Executive Committee in violating the contract entered into on their behalf by Sir Albert Stanley, and appealing to the Irish public to judge impartially the merits of the dispute, and fix the responsibility for the interruption to the train services which the attitude of the Railway Executive might preciattitude of the Railway Executive might precipitate on to-morrow (Tuesday) evening.

It was stated that Strike Committees had been re-formed, and all preparations were being completed. A mass meeting of Dublin and district clerks will be held in the Aberdeen Half, Gresham Hotel, at 8 o'clock this evening.

Similar resolutions were passed by the branches of the Association in Belfast, Londonderry, Dundalk, Cork, Limerick, etc.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Siz,—Dr. Fleury's letter in the Irish Times of the 5th inst. contained many truths which it would be very advisable for the Government to consider before framing a Health Bill for Ireland. The root basis of health is surely a sanitary house in which to live, and until the town poor are properly housed all the Acts in creation will not improve their condition. A Ministry of Health is, I contend, neither necessary nor advisable for Ireland for many years to come, the various Public Health Acts being sufficient, provided they were properly administered. The administration of these Acts falls to the duty of the Rural District and Urban District Councils, and that the duties are not carried out will, I think, be admitted by all who know anything of the question. The Government should, in my opinion, concentrate their attention on one matter only—housing—and the controlling nower should be verted in some autherities. DEATH OF A DUBLIN ARTIST. The death took place on Saturday at his res The death took place on Saturday at his residence, 25 Millmount place, Drumcondra, of Mr. Philip Donovan. He was a young man of much artistic ability, and was engaged in one of the stained-glass firms in Dublin. Mr. Donovan was the composer of an Irish musical comedy, "The Top of the Morning," to be produced at the Empire Theatre during the week commencing March 24th.

DR. HALLINAN'S LENTEN PASTORAL.

Rev. Dr. Hallinan, Roman Catholic Bishop of Limerick, read yesterday, he referred to the exclusion of the Pope from the deliberations of the Peace Conference, and proceeded:—"I will ask you to pray that God may so direct the counsels of men, even of those who seem to ignore Him, that they may lead to a desirable peace in general, and to the freedom of our own dear country, now so sorely tried. And we should pray with much confidence, as we know from recent experience how the united, earnest prayers of our Catholic people warded off from us the threatened scourge of conscription."

EAST ANTRIM BY-ELECTION.

The election campaign in East Antrim is now in full swing, and both candidates have arranged a series of meetings in the constituency. Major Moore, D.S.O., the candidate selected by the official Unionist Association, will have an uphill fight against his opponent, Mr. George B. Hanna, solicitor, who is well known in the constituency, and was a Vice-President of the Unionist Association. Mr. Hanna was a candidate for the division at the recent general election, but withdrew in favour of Lieutenant-Colonel McCalmont in consequence of Sir Edward Carson's appeal for units. The name of Major McCormack, President of the Farmers' Union, was also before the constituency, but at a recent meeting Mr. Hanna announced that there was a possibility of Major McCormack's withdrawing from the contest. There may be a Sinn Fein candidate.

A Reuter's Johannesburg telegram, dated February 28th, says:—
Major Court Treatt, Officer-in-Charge of the Southern Survey of the aerial route from Cairo to Cape Town, states that all sites for aerodromes from Abercorn, southwards, were being surveyed preparatory to the erection of aerodromes. The distance between the sites is from three hundred to four hundred miles With a large Handley Page machine, the 5,500 miles from Cairo to Cape Town should be accomplished, Major Treatt says, in about fifty flying hours. The survey of the region from Victoria Nyanza to Abercorn has been entrusted to Major Emmett, a South African officer. Kingstown, March 8th, 1919.

FIRE AT AERODROME.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.
Sir,—The great necessity for some definite and practical scheme for the benefit of ex-Damage estimated at £40,000 was caused by an outbreak of fire at Fern Hill Aerodrome, Market Drayton last night. A hangar and four Handley wagons were completely de-stroyed. Many machines were saved through the timely assistance of officers and mechanics. The fire is supposed to have eriginated in an office stove.

NURSES AND HOSPITALS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR.—To follow up my recent letter, I would always that the Government should allow to the boards of any properly managed hospitals so much a bed per patient, as has been allowed by the military for soldiers during the war. One condition of such a grant should be that the turses' salaries be increased and their hours on duty shortened.

Possibly it might be well to have a conference summoned of the boards of all our Dublin hospitals to fully consider the matter; but where should such a conference be summoned, and by whom? Of course, the mattons of the various hospitals would also be consulted.—Yours, etc.,

SHORTAGE OF HAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I do not know if all Ireland is suffering from shortage of hay as Carlow is. I hear that few fields were let for hay, and that hay will be scarcer than ever next winter. This will mean a shortage of milk and butter. Is there any enterprising person who would import alfalfa and by whom? Of course, the mattons of the various hospitals would also be consulted.—Yours, etc.,

THE RETIREMENT OF CAPTAIN PINCHIN. Captain J. Fitzmaurice Pinchin (late Lieut, R.N.R.), the well-known commodore of the fleet of the London and North-Westers, Railway pany, who is retiring from active, life, was in Co. Tipperary. He was educated at I Naval Brigade until after the battle of Telesk Kebir. It was in 1885 that he joined the London and North-Western Railway Company's steamers as chief officer, achieved his first command two years later, and was promoted to commodore in 1906. On the outbreak of the war in August, 1914, H.M.S. Scotia was taken over as a merchant armed cruiser with Captain Pinchin in command. Captain Pinchin retires now after twenty-seven years in command, eleven of which were spent as commodore, and during the whole period of service had no accidents and no cases of loss of life in connection with any of his vessels. Captain Pinchin is a younger brother of Trinity House, a member of the Executive Council of the Mercantile Marine Service Association, and a county magistrate.

"Shall I buy my

at the Special

Prices of Wal-poles' Sale, or shall I wait and see if prices will drop still lower"

This is a question that many ladies are no doubt asking ing time, and quite right, too, as things are. At the same time it would be wise not to wait, for, although prices will drop, they can't for a considerable time to come. And then the drop will not be great, because so much of the present prices represent increased wages.

And when it is known that it takes 8/3 to 11/- worth of cotton to make a pair of curtains, without counting wages, one will not fail to it is far better to
